The aim of this study was to review our experience with patients with blunt injuries to evaluate our clinical practice and suggest guidelines for management. In this study, patients with blunt abdominal trauma were retrospectively reviewed. The study protocol included a detailed evaluation of the patients' complaints, physical examination, initial laboratory findings, and surgical findings. Overall, 325 blunt abdominal trauma patients were included in this study. Of these, 241 patients (74%) were admitted to the emergency department (ED) with abdominal pain alone, and 84 (26%) had intra-abdominal injuries, according to the ATLS classification. Of the 325 patients, 34% had local abdominal pain, 57% had vague abdominal pain, and 9% had diffuse abdominal pain. A total of 201 patients (61.5%) had blunt injuries to the spleen, liver, or other intra-abdominal organs. Other injuries included ruptured aorta, other vessel injuries, intestinal injuries, and peritoneal signs. Six patients had major vascular injuries. The mean Injury Severity Score was 19.7. The overall mortality rate was 4.1%. The
